

SCHOOL TIMES GOING TO CHANGE?

How could it get any worse? More time at school? The school times are currently starting at 8:30am and ending at 2:40pm. Although there is a possible chance that they could be altered. The school could start at 9am and end at 6pm or start at 12am and end at 7pm

We have talked to countless teachers and students who go to, or work at Regents Park and the teachers are all saying the same thing, they are all concerned about student safety (as of course anyone would). Most were also concerned about the amount of time they would be able to spend with their families, and at what time they would get round to marking books or even if they would be able to catch their favourite soap!

Most students said that they prefer the current school times, a student from year 10 said, "If the times were changed it would be really late when I walk home and it takes me an hour to get there so I would be really late." "A lot of students going to Regents also have younger siblings who go to primary schools; some working parents rely on their older children to pick them up." Said a year 8.

As a proven fact, delaying the school can have other effects on students, for example they would get less social time or family time and it can affect the homework that they do because more library's will be closed when they are walking home. On a whole changing school times can effect students, but will it be done??
